A LITTLE TALK OVER LUMBER

with us may save you both money and annoyance. We can prove that it pays to buy good lumber even for a chicken house. We can prove our lumber is good either by showing it to you if you are an expert or by referring you to previous buyers from us, if you are not. When we have proved both these propositions, the rest is up to you.

P. L. FITZGERALD & CO., PUBLISHERS
GARY CITY DIRECTORY
GARY, INDIANA

INTRODUCTORY

This is the first edition of the Directory of Gary and the publishers have spared neither time nor expense in making it the equal of any other work of its character.

Only competent and experienced men have been employed in the canvass and compilation of the work and the enumeration has extended to every store, office, factory and dwelling, thereby making the collection of names and addresses as correct as possible.

A City Directory has come to be recognized as an actual necessity. Without it the business world would be in a chaotic condition, and the stranger in a city would be absolutely lost. The Directory is the guide to which every one naturally turns when seeking information concerning persons or places. It is the strongest factor of growth and prosperity, and nothing is more conducive to the extension of business.

The first part of the book is replete with illustrations of the early history and miscellaneous information, such as city government, location of the churches, schools, societies, public blocks, halls, etc.

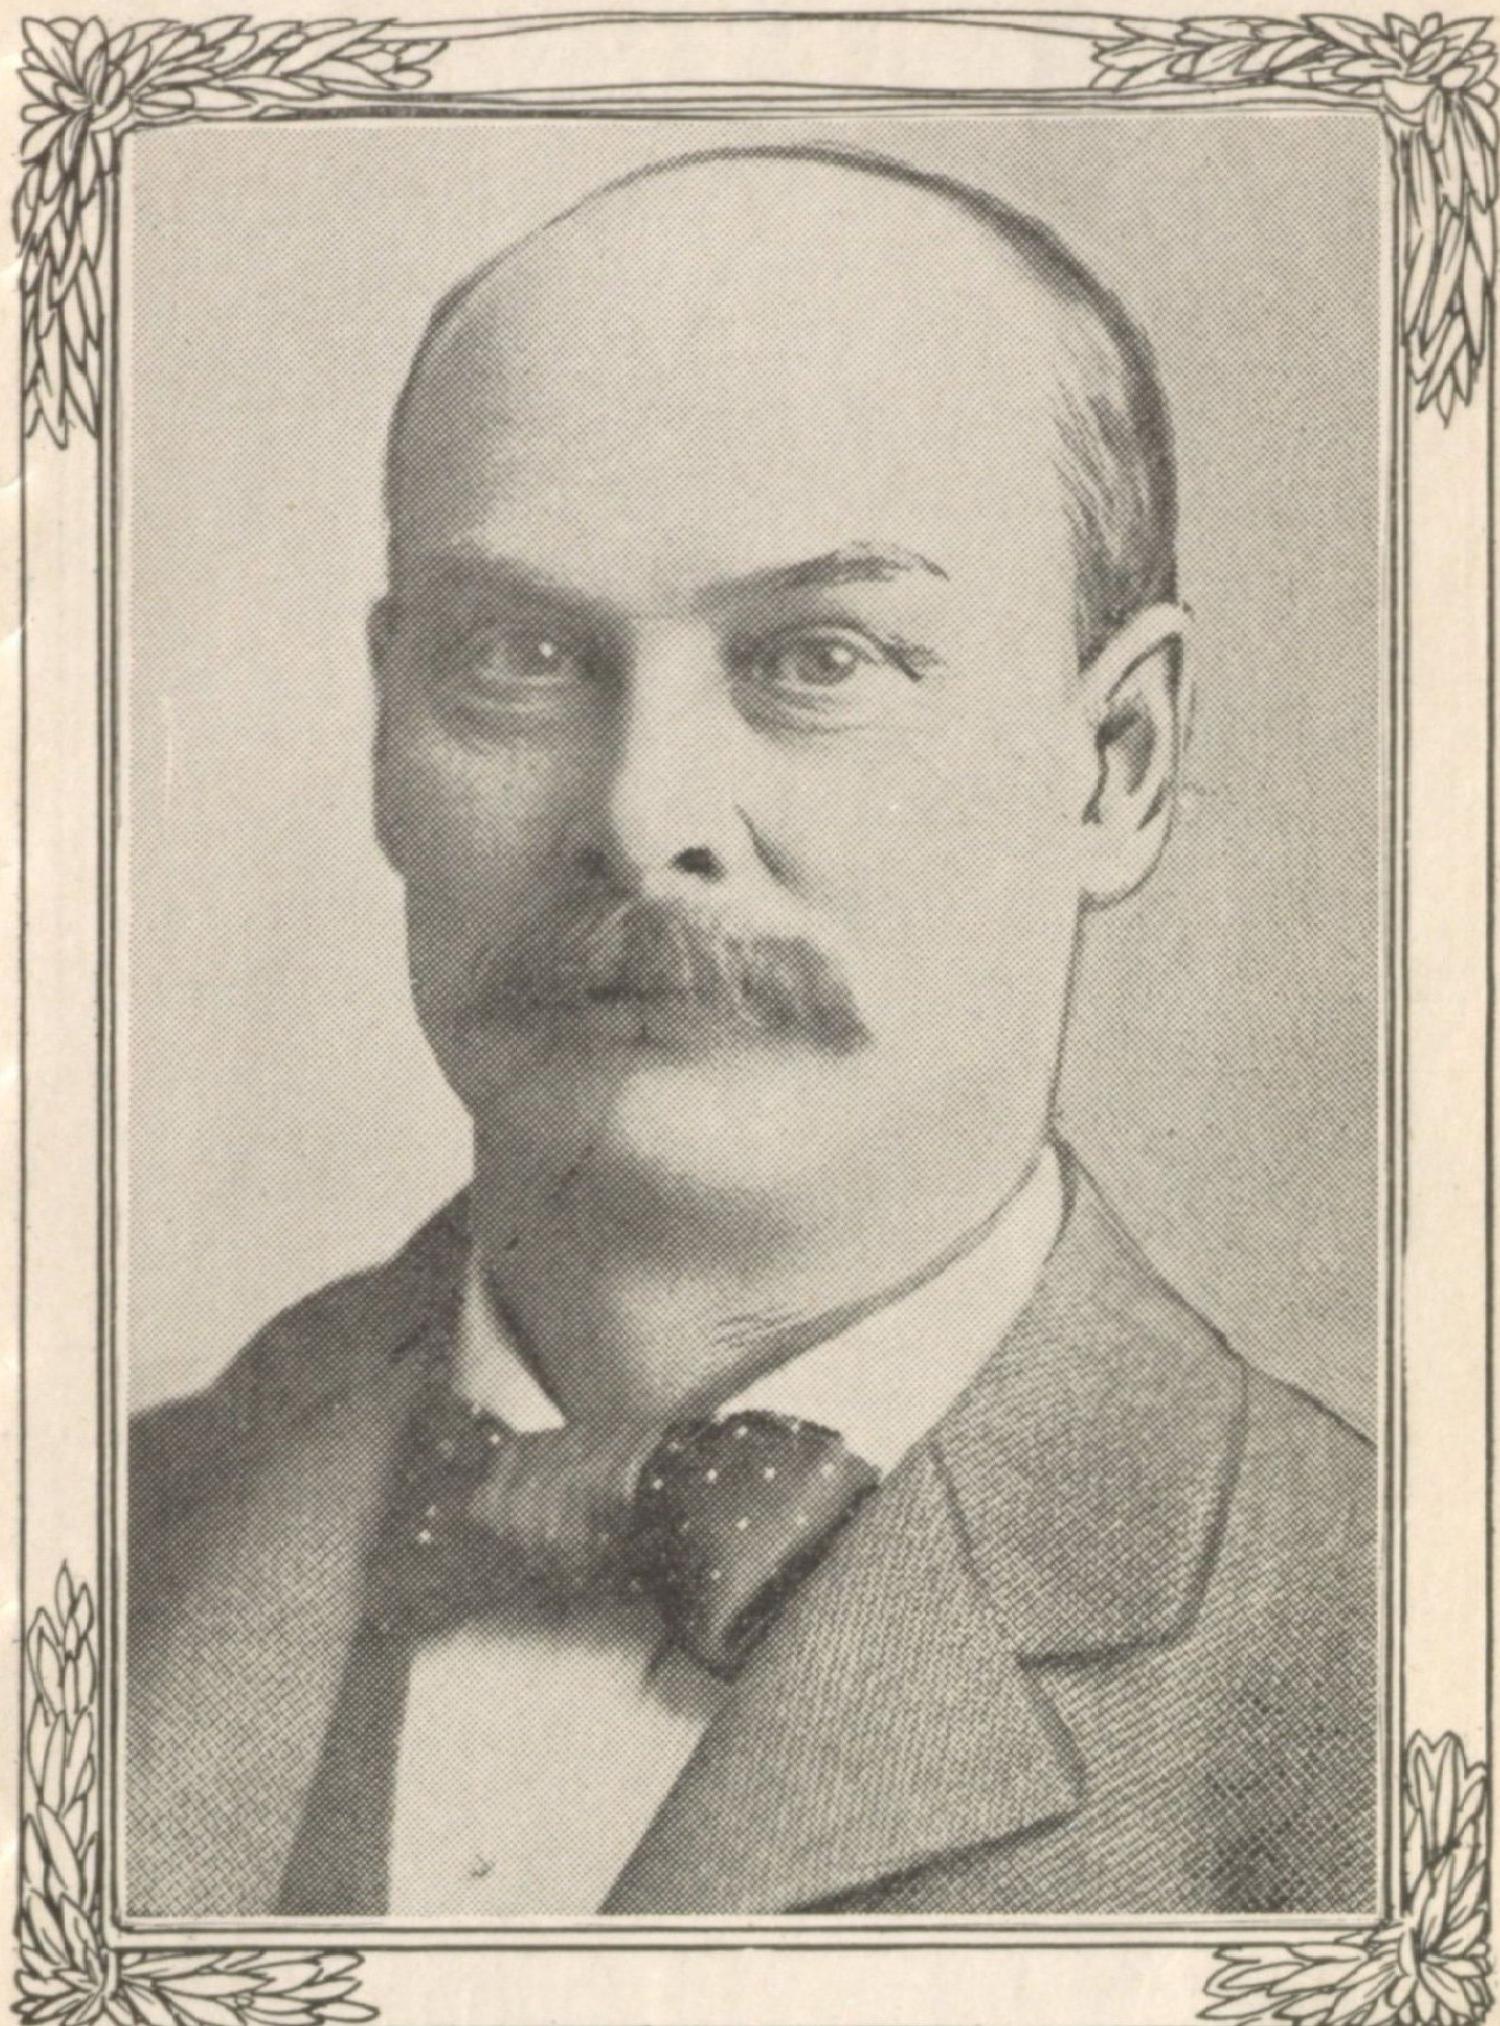

The central and most important part of the Directory is an alphabetical arrangement of the names of all persons residing in Gary.

The last portion of the book proper contains the names of all manufacturers, business and professional men, classified under appropriate headings, bringing those of like business together. This will be found useful in purchasing wares of any description, for the names and location of all persons engaged in any line of trade can be seen at a glance, and the largest, and most enterprising will be found printed in prominent type.

Thanking the citizens for the liberal patronage and many courtesies extended to our solicitors and canvassers,

We are, respectfully,

THE PUBLISHERS.

HISTORY OF GARY

Gary is more than local. Gary belongs to the world at large. From its very inception it bounded to the place to which it belongs by every right of position geographically and the enormous business that will be transacted within its borders within a short period. It is because of this that Gary will be called the center of the steel and iron business of the universe. Gary is not a vari-colored dream, but a golden actual reality. It is not the work of a moment, the fantastic birth of a visionary; but it is the result of deep thought by masterful minds, giants in intellect representing American push and energy, brooking no interference with designs tested and found to be correct.

America has many places that blossomed in a night and died later from inanition, the flamboyant schemes of real estate men who wanted to dispose at high prices of their acre property cut into building lots; but never before has this or any other country witnessed the stupendous proposition of a wealth of golden dollars pouring over a bleak and barren waste and transforming it with the help of human ingenuity of the highest type into a thing of beauty and a joy forever, a city with paved streets and alleys, parks, electric lighting systems, electric lines, steam railroads, magnificent sewer and gas system, a school system still in its budding infancy but under the direction of capable and wise thought destined to be a model for the country at large to copy from, with the many other affiliations that go to make the ideal city.

It is a little over two years ago that the United States Steel corporation, America's greatest corporation, decided that business reasons made a new plant necessary. The mills than at work in different cities were crowded to their utmost capacity and were daily falling behind in the enormous demand made on them. Every day saw a hopeless struggle to supply an ever increasing demand and it was such a fact that caused the financial giants who direct the destinies of the greatest combination of interests on the face of the globe to decide to meet, not only the present time, but the future which was certain to increase, that new and vast mills capable not only of eclipsing the demand of the present, but able to meet the business as the conditions caused by the increase demanded. To think quickly was to act. To act quickly is the grand and winning quality of the Captain of Finance.

The United States Steel company is co-extensive with the earth itself. Its master mind is the eminent performer who sits before the grand organ and manipulates its stops, playing the dreamy figures, quickening into the waltz and dashing through the more rapid numbers as the occasion requires. As the organist looks over his score, so does the Captain of Finance examine, with equal care, his various marshals and finding the proper one instantly installs him in a service for which he alone among the many others is the most capable and fitting representative. Then finding the proper medium to produce the desired result materials for the campaign is the next step.

In the search through the army of thousands of employes reaching from one end of the country to the other there was found the one man in whom was combined those happy qualifications that produce success and at the same time was found the place beyond all questions upon which to locate the greatest industry in the world and the city about which it must be built. In Ex-Mayor A. F. Knotts of Hammond, the Captains of Finance found the man most qualified to carry out their most cherished plans. He was ideally fitted for the grand work. Problems of an economic nature had long been his study. He had represented his district in the legislature in a fitting manner and had discharged the duties of the mayor of Hammond in a way that had brought that city rapidly to the front. Through his efforts eleven manufacturing concerns had been induced to locate there and had added to the welfare of the city by employing many thousands of men, the various municipal systems were improved in a substantial way without any increase in the municipal debt. While added to his many other qualifications was the fact that he had been a civil engineer of note and a real estate operator of ripe judgment and considerable experience. It was to A. F. Knotts then that the Captains of Finance turned to accomplish the task never before given to a comparatively unknown man and that it was accomplished successfully has become a matter of history.

Mr. Knotts long before had become convinced that Chicago had been located twenty-six miles outside of the line, that Chicago should have been located in Indiana where Gary now is. It was the ideal spot, he thought, for a city and when the project was unfolded to him he at once picked on the present site as the place for the future great city of the world. There is no room for doubt about the matter of location. The district is traversed by the great trunk lines running east and west. The B. & O., the Lake Shore, Wabash, Michigan Central and the Pennsylvania systems run through the district within a short distance of each other while the Chicago, Lake Shore & Eastern and Indiana Harbor Belt and freight lines make connections of great value to manufacturing establishments. The bend in the lake formed a natural harbor which could be improved upon to make one of the most complete and commodious of the kind and in which vessels of the greatest draft could ride with perfect safety. In the assembling of the raw materials necessary in the great business, the location was the best placed of any of the great works under the control of the company. The haul of the ore from the iron regions by boat was short, the material could be quickly unloaded, after which the finished product could be shipped to any point on the trunk lines or belt lines all cheaper and much more expeditiously than from any other place. The state laws, too, were not unfavorable to corporations. The tremendous amount of preliminary work cannot be estimated, but it was finally performed. Fully 10,000 acres of land changed hands at prices ranging from a few dollars to as many thousands an acre. The vast plans for the actual works were being pushed in the meantime and finally the secret was given out and Gary stepped forth to take her place among the great cities of the earth.

It is needless to say that the plans were voluminous, for the United States Steel company had placed the cost of the undertaking at seventy-five million dollars. They included paved streets, a perfect water and lighting system, houses for their employes, paved streets and alleys twenty feet wide in which was to be placed conduits for electric lights, wires, telephones, and telegraph, sewers, water and gas instead of in the streets, a school system with buildings in harmony with the grand effort of which the Emerson school building, named after the Sage of Concord, is a fitting illustration, the estimated cost of which is nearly $200,000; public buildings, hotels, union depots, additional transportation facilities, the Gary & Western being the first, a model police force and the many other matters that serve to make the community an ideal one. Broadway and Fifth avenue were to be the principal streets and upon these streets the class of buildings were to be of a high order, for the company in arranging the matter had decided that the first subdivision, extending from the Lake Shore to the Wabash tracks, should be sold to business men of high standing. That the plans have worked out well is beyond question. The blocks built on these streets will compare with any class of buildings in any city in the country.

Broadway is the central street and on either side, running east and west, the streets are named in honor of the various presidents, and the several states of the Union while running from north to south the thoroughfares are called avenues. Blocks have been reserved for park purposes at various places about the town where the people may go in the cool of the evening as well as during the heated term of the day.

The opportunity to buy real estate in the steel company's subdivision was made known in September of 1906 and from the first day came a steady demand that has not decreased in any particular. Much of the property has been withdrawn from the market but the demand for advantageous sites is still strong.

The influx of people and with them the needs of a government brought the necessity of a town board, the result being the first and only town election, which was spirited enough and which resulted in the selection of the following:

THOMAS E. KNOTTS, President.

MILLARD A. CALDWELL, Trustee.

JOHN A. SEARS, Trustee.

OLIVER HOLMES, Town Clerk.

LOUIS A. BRYAN, Treasurer.

A. P. Melton was made town engineer for he had had considerable experience in the work under the direction of the Steel company while L. L. Bomberger was appointed two attorney. Only forty-nine votes were cast and those by old settlers who lived south and west of the Pennsylvania tracks.

The first board meeting was held in the office of the Gary Land Company, still standing on Broadway near the Lake Shore tracks. Beyond it were the sand dunes and the forest. But a few persons attended and they were attracted by the novelty of the affair, rather than by the fact that it was the birth of a great subject. In the same building was started the first post-office, the first post-master being Thomas E. Knotts, who held office until June 1, 1908, when he resigned and the position

The subject of this sketch, P. L. Fitzgerald, but more commonly known as the Judge, is one of the pioneer and substantial citizens of the "Pittsburg of the West."

Mr. Fitzgerald has been serving as Police Magistrate of Gary for the past two years and his unbounded popularity amongst the attorneys of the coming metropolis of Lake County substantiates the dutiful and impartial service he has given to Gary as her first Judge.

Mr. Fitzgerald was the instigator of Gary's first city directory and for the past six months, he and his associates have sacrificed considerable time in the issuing of this book.

It is a well-known fact that the book will not be a financial success, but Mr. Fitzgerald and associates foresaw the needs of a reference book of this character, but were willing to sacrifice some financial loss and considerable time in giving to Gary her first directory and establishing themselves in the field as the official publishers of the Gary directory.

went to Ex-Mayor Call of Elwood after a warm contest. Soon after it was raised to an office of the second-class, which gives the town a delivery service and the employes an increase in salary and the office more help. The first post-master's position had been a trying one because of the failure of the authorities at Washington to grasp the idea that Gary was a growing place, and the consequent inability to furnish the local officials that support that they should have had. It was only by repeated appeals that anything was accomplished for the community. Increasing business interests that had to be attended to and the failure of the officials at Washington to assimilate conditions caused Mr. Knotts to finally insist on his resignation, which had been forwarded several times and as often refused.

The Lake Shore and Michigan Southern company soon after provided a temporary depot. It was the ordinary box car and months later it was succeeded by the present depot, which will soon give way to the Union Depot, to be erected at a great cost. Then Judge Fitzgerald broke ground on Broadway near the Calumet river for the Fitz House, which has since been moved to Massachusetts street. Quite a village sprung up about that point. It was really the beginning. Judge Huber held court there. Robert Orosz opened a Hungarian restaurant. F. K. Warne opened the first grocery house, while restaurants and boarding houses were clustered about. South of the railroad tracks the Northern Indianian erected a tent and sent out the first paper March 27, 1906. South of the Gary Land company office was the first street, Euclid avenue, and on it in hastily improvised shacks lived Gary's Four Hundred. President Knotts occupied a house there and so did Frank Chambers, Glen Harris, Clarence Bretsch, Charley Catey and many others. At the intersection of Euclid avenue and Broadway were the business houses of Numerdor & Griffith, Jeffreys & Morgan and Harris & Bretsch. Across the street were the buildings erected for school purposes and later for meetings of the town board, and which still stand.

The bulk of the work in the early days was on the north side, where the foundations for the big mills were started and work on the harbor commenced, but with the plans unfolding the trustees started work. Streets were ordered cut through the lofty sand dunes and the sand taken used in filling up the depressions. The work of paving Broadway followed and with it the huge other tasks. Buildings were started and the work is going on with vigor to such an extent that two years after the opening fully sixty million dollars have been invested in the mill and business section. On the mill site work is being pushed to completion under the experienced eye of W. H. Gleason. About three thousand men are employed there in various capacities and through them fully fifty thousand dollars a week is being distributed. On the south or residence side fully as many men are at work in the streets and on the construction of buildings and engaged in business. The progress of the town has been materially assisted by a board of trustees whose ability to penetrate the future and read the sign of the times is beyond question. The members are beyond reproach in every respect and are democratic in every particular. The benefit of the community has been the individual and collective study of the members at all times and by it the community has been protected against corporate greed and individual idiosyncrasies. Under such fostering care the town has progressed wonderfully. It is, perhaps, the best advertised town in the country. It has good laws, fire limits, a splendid school system, with W. A. Wirt, as superintendent; a formidable array of lawyers, doctors, dentists and professional men, societies of every description to which the stranger is made welcome.

But it is in its business affairs that Gary is strong. Already there are two banks, the State Bank and the First National Bank, and a third, the Gary Trust and Savings Bank, is in course of construction. There are business houses of every description, catering to the wants of the people; several hotels, electric car lines, department stores and everything that is necessary. And they are not alone in their glory, for at this writing many other business houses are going up to meet the demand that will be made on them. While the work is being rushed on the mill side, the time when the mills will actually begin to turn out the orders is not positively known, but it is supposed that work will not be commenced until late in the cold weather.
